“IMAGINATION IS THE HIGHEST KITE ONE CAN FLY”

Lauren Bacall

For centuries, goose down and feathers have been used as the ideal filling for pillows and down blankets: the small air pockets between the individual hairs ensure optimum insulation.

A mix of feather and down
is used to give the ideal level of weight and warmth.

The white goose down is like a flake (called cluster) retaining air; a perfect insulation for the body and creating the perfect microclimate.

The feathers are small and soft; they have a stem from where the ‘beards’
branch out, adding resistance and elasticity to the garment.

Fill Power of the down is in ration with the fluffiness
and quality of the garment.

Higher fill power means the down
has better quality, higher loft,
and retains its firmness longer.

Higher fill power is = higher quality down,
more fluffiness, lighter garment, more insulation, larger down, cluster...

The fillings are of the highest quality ( class I ) and a top heat class ( V ), tested at two different external independent entities in Portugal and Switzerland.

Celso de Lemos uses the most exclusive quality in down, promising you the softest nights.

The outer cover of all our products, the upholstery fabric, is made of the best down-proof Giza Egyptian Cotton, Extra Long Staple.

This cotton, 700 thread count in a percale weave has an elegant finish with a double stitching. The pockets of the duvet are stitched with an extra strong cotton thread to ensure the durability.
